

BRAYAN MORALES-MORALES

Brayan Morales-Morales is an Eagle Scout from Troop 190 in Easton, Maryland, and a lifelong advocate for outdoor adventure and youth development. Currently a student at Salisbury University, Brayan is majoring in Environmental Studies with aspirations of becoming a marine biologist, a path shaped by his deep appreciation for the natural world.

An avid outdoorsman, Brayan enjoys camping, hiking, kayaking, and exploring the ecosystems of the Delmarva Peninsula. His passion for service and conservation is reflected in his Eagle Scout project at Martinak State Park in Denton, MD, where he constructed roofs for three benches near the kayak launch and installed three life-ring stations equipped with reach poles. His project improved shaded access for individuals with limited mobility and enhanced water-safety resources for the community.

Brayan is enthusiastic about joining the Del-Mar-Va Council Executive Board, where he hopes to bring a youth-centered perspective, share his experiences, and help strengthen membership among younger Scouts. He is committed to ensuring that future generations have the same opportunities to grow, explore, and lead through Scouting that shaped his own journey.
